

Go Out and See GRANDVIEW

The Direction Is Up

"The direction is up." The residents of Grandview enjoy pure, delicious air that cannot be found on the lower levels.

In addition to the many homes that have sprung up in Grandview, it is well to remind prospective buyers that the Country club is an asset of permanent value.

Every one should own El Paso property of some kind. Whether you intend it as an investment or for a future home, two lots in Grandview are, by far, the best investment offered in El Paso today.

The modern advantages—such as telephone, two car lines, electric lights—are not to be overlooked when figuring on Grandview.

If you will go out and see Grandview Addition and spend a little time in studying its natural advantages, you will understand why it is named "Grandview."

No other suburban addition to El Paso has the natural advantages of Grandview—nor the modern improvements that have been added to Grandview.

The character of the homes in Grandview is above the average. The majority of the people who buy Grandview lots buy with the intention of making a home there. In fact, Grandview is the "Home Suburb" of El Paso. Splendid soil and plenty of Mesa water make it possible to have a garden, flowers and shrubbery.

THE CHORUS LADY

Novelized From Forbes's
Play of the Same Name by John W. Harding

When he reached the theater he could not find the old couple. After hunting about awhile he took his seat in the orchestra, thinking they might return there and that, anyhow, he would be able to assure himself that the girls were on the stage. It did not take him long to ascertain that neither of them was in the chorus, and he hastened around to the stage door. There he was told, as the O'Briens had been, that the girls had left before the performance began. It occurred to him that when they received the message he had sent to Patsy it had occasioned such joy and excitement that they had obtained leave of absence, had joined their parents and were waiting about for him somewhere. No doubt they had not seen him when he re-entered the theater.

He was about to return to the front when he happened along the passage the boy to whom he had given the verbal message to Patsy, with a tip calculated to insure its safe delivery.

"Lookin' for Miss O'Brien?" queried the youth.

"Yes," replied Mallory.

"She's gone; so's her sister," he told him. "They had a row."

"Had a row?"

"Yep. 'Pears they had a hair pullin' match, an' both vamoosed without tellin' de stage manager. I guess it'd be hinky dink for dem. He's been fightin' mad ever since. Dey called de curtain ten minutes. De call boy seen de youngest go away in a cab."

"That so?" said Mallory, greatly troubled. "Where did they go, d'you know?"

"Nope, but Miss Simpson does, I think."

"Who's Miss Simpson?"

"She's one of de show girls."

Mallory took a dollar from his pocket.

"Can you tell Miss Simpson Mr. Mallory'd like to see her?" he asked.

"Sure!" replied the boy, pocketing the bill and darter.

In a few minutes he returned.

"Miss Simpson said for you to wait here for her," he announced.

In a little while the woman whose mode of life had often aroused Patsy's sharp tongue came down majestically. It was implacable war between her and Patsy, and she was quite willing to carry it to extremes and seize every possible chance to injure her enemy.

She knew that Mallory was Patsy's fiance. Not only was she curious to see him, but the boy had told her that he was looking for Patsy, and she saw a possible opportunity to work further scathe to the girl.

"Are you Mr. Mallory?" she inquired, looking the trainer over with a critical eye.

"I suppose you're after Miss O'Brien. The whole town seems to be after her tonight, and everybody is coming to me to tell them where she's gone, as if I was her keeper and knew or cared."

"I'm sorry to have disturbed you, miss," said Mallory, in his blunt way, though he felt awkward and a little timid in the presence of this tall, handsome woman with the air of an aristocrat.

"The boy I sent up told me that he thought you knew where they was."

"I know nothing about them, really," she said, with cold haughtiness, "but I have been given to understand that Nora O'Brien had an appointment this evening with her lover, Mr. Dick Crawford, the sporting man who keeps her, they say. Probably her sister had a date also, but I don't know where she is."

Mallory flushed indignantly.

"Well, you tell whoever said such a thing that it's a foul lie," he said hotly.

"And if any man says it I'll fill him so full of lead the devil won't be able to catch him as he tumbles down to hell!"

Simpson shrugged her shoulders.

"It's common talk here. You might try Crawford's," she said.

She turned on her heels and walked away.

COMMISSIONERS ILL; MAY DELAY DAM

Cannot Make Report in Proper Time for the Work to Begin.

Complications which may delay the work on the Elephant Butte dam indefinitely have resulted from the illness of Harvey Ringer, one of the appraisers appointed by the district court at Socorro, to report on the worth of the land owned by the Victoria Land and Cattle company, which is desired by the reclamation service for a part of the Hall lake to impound the waters of the Elephant Butte project.

Mr. Ringer, who has been here in poor health for some time, has arranged to go to Wisconsin Thursday or Friday for a serious operation. This is expected to mean an indefinite postponement of the report of this commission. John MacAvish, another commissioner, is now in Kansas City, where he recently underwent an operation, which, while not serious, will prevent him taking an active part in business for at least three weeks.

District engineer Reed stated today that these complications might result in an indefinite delay of the reclamation operations at the dam.

TUCSON WANTS GOV- ERNORS AT CELEBRATION.

Sends Committee to Sonora and Sinaloa to Invite Prominent Guests to the Railway Celebration.

Tucson, Ariz., March 30.—A special committee, headed by Geo. F. Kitt, president of the Tucson chamber of commerce, and Fred Ronstadt, chairman of the committee on invitations for the Cinco de Mayo celebration to be held at Tucson on May 5 and 6, on the occasion of the opening of the Tucson & West Coast of Mexico railroad, will leave Tucson on Sunday for Sonora and Sinaloa, for the purpose of extending personal invitations to the governors of Sonora and Sinaloa, and to the mayors of the large cities in those states to attend the celebration.

This committee will bear formal invitations to the governors of Sonora and Sinaloa, and formal invitations to the mayors of Guaymas, Alamos, Mazatlan, Culiacan, Hermosillo, Magdalena, Nogales and Cananea, issued by mayor P. N. Jacobus, of Tucson, on behalf of the people of this city.

SCHOOL OF MINES STUDENT GOES TO ANNAPOLIS.

Socorro, N. M., March 30.—C. J. Crandell, freshman at the New Mexico School of Mines, received an appointment to Annapolis, and left for his home in Santa Fe to prepare for the examination. A farewell dinner was given the evening of his departure, those present being Glen Vivian, R. B. Terry, W. A. Cameron, Corey T. Brown, C. J. Crandell and E. M. Hobart.

Cashier E. L. Price made a record run in his automobile to Magdalena, the distance being covered in one hour and 50 minutes. Much competition is going on as to the record from Lucero to Magdalena between the owners of different cars. So far Mr. Price holds the record.

Misses Goodwin and Laidley, of Covington, Ky., have arrived in Lucero, to remain until the close of the school year in May. Miss Goodwin is a sister of W. P. Goodwin, a senior at the school of mines.

Dr. Kimmmerer, who has been quite ill for some weeks, is reported much improved.

MONTEREY PERSONALS.

Monterey, N. M., March 30.—Arthur Chalk has returned to the Flying H ranch, after a few days' visit with his sister, Mrs. Belle Reagan.

Little Sophy Douglas has at last returned to school, after a long spell with a broken arm.

L. E. Lumley and Mr. St. Clair have gone to the Old Gey ranch.
